

I would strongly prefer that cell phones not be used while I am on airborne plane. However, at the same time, it would be great if internet/e-mail access was available, since this would allow people to communicate without bothering others.